d. This Regiment used the following training areas:

- (1) Zalarét, located 700 meters from the Petöfi Caserne.
- (2) The training grounds near Vasvár (N 47-03, E 16-48), where artillery tactics were taught.
- (3) The training area near Ujdörög (Ujdörögdi tüzérségi löté).
- (4) The artillery range (tüzérségi löté) near Varpalota (N 47-12, E 18-08).

e. [redacted] items of equipment used by the 32nd Artillery Regiment:

25X1

- (1) Twelve 76 mm Soviet Divisional Guns, 1942 model.
- (2) Twenty-four 122 mm Soviet Howitzers, M 1938 (M-30), on ZIS-151 trucks.
- (3) Sixty to 70 R-10 and R-20 Soviet-type radios in use; there was about the same number in the supply room.
- (4) An unidentified Soviet-type radio. [redacted] this radio was generally used on the divisional level only. [redacted]
- (5) One 132 mm Rocket Launcher, M-13, on a ZIS-151 truck. This was a hand-operated, semi-automatic weapon, with phosphor shells which ignited after explosion. These weapons were allegedly used at special regiments [redacted] at Orkeny-Tabor [redacted] one such regiment was located there. This regiment was allegedly deactivated in 1954.
- (6) Vippon [redacted] and Csengel three-ton trucks [redacted]
